They brought him down to Seez and after energetic treatment succeeded in reviving him. He walks today as if nothing had happened. This accident won for him the stripes of a chasseur of the first class. On one of his sleeves he wears, besides, a hunting horn won in a shooting contest last year. Not everybody has an orderly with such trimmings. Roger would have wished to be attached to Captain Larchey's company. The latter would gladly have taken him with him. But his list of officers was full and the newcomer was assigned to the Second Company, commanded by Captain Blanc-Coquand. The lieutenant of the company is busy taking care of a sprain he got in the winter maneuvers. He goes, therefore, very little to the exercises. Roger had anticipated responsibility. He gets it at once, more of...
