Excerpt: . . . staggered, doubting in his heart that he was overbold. For in that moment she had flashed upon him like a jewel; and even through the strong panoply of a previous love he had been conscious of a shock. Next moment he had dismissed the fear. Both Otto and the Countess retired early from the drawing-room; and the Prince, after an elaborate feint, dismissed his valet and went forth by the private passage and the back postern in quest of the groom. Once more the stable was in darkness, once more Otto employed the talismanic knock, and once more the groom appeared and sickened with terror. Good evening, friend, said Otto, pleasantly. I want you to bring a corn sack--empty this time--and to accompany me. We shall be gone all night. Your Highness, groaned the man, I have the charge of the small stables. I am here alone. Come, said the Prince, you are no such martinet in duty. And then seeing that the man was shaking from head to foot, Otto laid a hand upon his shoulder. If I meant you harm, he said, should I be here The fellow became instantly reassured. He got the sack; and Otto led him round by several paths and avenues, conversing pleasantly by the way, and left him at last planted by a certain fountain where a goggle-eyed Triton spouted intermittently into a rippling laver. Thence he proceeded alone to where, in a round clearing, a copy of...
