Brand New Book  Print on Demand .Excerpt from Irving: 1864 1908 In a recent meeting of Irving Institute an old alumnus, now prominent in the legal profession, stated it as his belief that no portion of the education gained at the State University of Iowa was of greater value than that found in the work taken up by members of Irving Institute. An alumnus myself of some 28 years standing, I am very ready to subscribe to that statement, indeed more ready now than I might have been years ago. The statement is true not only in its application to those who intend to take up the legal profession, but to men of any profession whatever. In broader application, it would be true more especially in regard to America than to any other country. There is hardly any rank of life in our country where it is not now and then necessary or desirable for a man to be able to stand on his feet before an audience of one sort or another, and not only to think on his feet, but to be able express himself clearly and without awkwardness. This faculty, once gained, never wholly leaves its possessor. If it has not been gained by one means or other, it never can be summoned up on an instants notice in time of need. Any alumnus who has been away from the school thirty, twenty, or ten years, will remember a score of instances where he has been obliged to speak - at a public meeting, at a banquet, before a board of directors, among a few friends, with preparation or without notice.
